This month's performance vs. S&P 500

Analyst's notes

We rebalanced the portfolio this month - I want to stress that this does not mean we have lost conviction on some of these sales (AMD, LUNR, etc). Massive run-ups, or effective catalyst had caused these holdings to become overweight.

We also closed positions on RDDT, TM, and SMR. Our thesis on Reddit had run its course. Toyota was a hedge in our Japanese portfolio, the thesis played out for IX/MUFG thus Toyota was no longer needed. The thesis around SMR was correct, but it has displayed textbook execution failure.

The capital freed from these sales was utilized to create a strong defensive position to protect from potential stagflation, while continuing to build dry powder.
